June 14th, 1904

My dearest Eleanor,

The garden is in full bloom at last, and I thought of you this morning among the sweet peas. Mother sends her love and asks whether you received the lavender she pressed in last week's parcel.

The evenings are long and golden now. I sit by the window with my sewing and listen for the post.

Do write soon and tell me everything ~
the shops, the sea, the people you have met.

Ever your affectionate sister,

Margaret
